

WHY BOOK A VILLA HOLIDAY?

You've "done" the tours, stayed in B&B's, tried the cheap hotels, moved up to the better hotels and resented the prices - now what? To get the best of all worlds a villa or cottage is the obvious answer. Eat in, eat out, shop at the markets with the locals, lie in, or get up with the dawn, visit the wineries and drink the spoils on the terrace or in front of a roaring fire. Sounds great, doesn't it?

Perhaps the best thing about villa/cottage/apartment life is the cost. At first glance it may not look much different to hotel or bed and breakfast prices but factor in all the extrameals in cafes at European prices and it suddenly takes on a different complexion. If it is for a family then the benefits are enormous and as well as the financial gain the opportunities for children to sample another culture are far greater than in an impersonal hotel. Of course, for couples of any age, the privacy you get in your "own" place is irreplaceable - no maids to disturb the lovers, 3am snacks for the insomniacs and breakfast at any hour for everyone - total freedom!

Amazingly, everyone's dream can be catered for in this type of accommodation, from the isolation of a lighthouse on a remote Scottish cliff to an apartment among the bustle of a Parisian quayside, a converted castle in Tuscany to a farmhouse in the Dordogne - even a "folly" in the British countryside. Of course, five star properties have prices to match and you get what you pay for but even the cheapest properties compete favourably with the available alternatives.

As the specialist in this field for nearly two decades, Eurovillas has a wide selection of properties. We value the feedback we receive from our customers and the subsequent recommendations are passed on as well as negative comments and helpful hints (often as detailed as the specialties of the local pub!) Many clients return year after year and some just give the required location and leave the choice to the Eurovillas staff who know just what they like. Of course, we all vie with each other to come up with something special!

If you have never tried living like the locals, why not give it a go? You'll love it - it's great whatever the season!
